

FROM PAST TO FUTURE: THE AUSTRALIAN EXPERIENCE OF LAND/AIR OPERATIONS

CONTRIBUTORS

Nicola Baker is a doctoral student at the Strategic and Defence Studies Centre at the Australian National University. She has published articles on various aspects of contemporary Australian defence policy and on Asian concepts of security, and is currently researching defence policy formation in the ASEAN countries. Among her recent publications is More than Little Heroes: Australian Army Air Liaison Officers in the Second World War (1994).

Brigadier Peter Cosgrove is currently Commandant, Australian Defence Force Warfare Centre. A graduate of RMC Duntroon, the United States Marine Corps Command and Staff College and the Joint Services Staff College, his previous appointments include Commandant of the Infantry Centre and Director of Infantry, and command of 6th Brigade in Brisbane.

Chris Coulthard-Clark is a graduate of RMC Duntroon and of the University of New South Wales. He is the author of a number of books on Australian military history, most recently a volume in the official history of Australian involvement in southeast Asian conflicts, The RAAF in Vietnam (1995).

Peter Dennis is professor of history at University College, University of New South Wales, Australian Defence Force Academy. His most recent publication is The Oxford Companion to Australian Military History (1995).

Jeffrey Grey is a senior lecturer in history at University College, University of New South Wales, Australian Defence Force Academy. His most recent publication is The Oxford Companion to Australian Military History (1995).

Major Mike Howard is a graduate of the Officer Cadet School, Portsea, and the Army Command and Staff College. He has a degree in International Relations from Deakin University, and is working on a Masters degree in Business Administration at the University of Melbourne. He is currently the Staff Officer Grade 2 at the Army Technology and Engineering Agency.

John Mordike was formerly an officer in the Australian Army. His military career spanned 17 years of commissioned service and included several regimental and staff appointments. During this period he spent one year on active service in Vietnam. After leaving the army he was appointed in a civilian capacity as an historian in Army Office. He began working at the Air Power Studies Centre in 1993. He is the author of An Army for a Nation: A history of Australian military developments 1880-1914 (1992).

Captain Russell Parkin is currently the Visiting Fellow at the Directorate of Army Research and Analysis, researching a thesis on 'Australian Close Air Support Doctrine, 1942-53'. He is a RAEME officer who joined the Regular Army in 1990. Prior to this he was an officer in the Army Reserve, graduating from OCTU 2 Training Group in 1982. He is a graduate of Macquarie University, Wollongong University, Sydney University of Technology and the University of New South Wales.

Lieutenant General John Sanderson was appointed Chief of the General Staff in July 1995. His previous position was Commander, Joint Forces Australia, following his appointment as military commander of the United Nations Transitional Authority in Cambodia, 1992-93.

Colonel Peter Simpson is a graduate of the Officer Training School, Scheyville, and of the United States Army Aviation School, Fort Rucker, Alabama. Following a long career in Army Aviation, he was appointed Director, Australian Army Aviation Corps, in 1993.

Roger J Spiller is the George C Marshall Professor of Military History at the US Army's Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas. For several years he has served concurrently as Personal Historian to the Chief of Staff of the Army. He is a founding member and former director of the Combat Studies Institute. His most recent work is Combined Arms in Action since 1939 (1992), for which he served as general editor.

Alan Stephens is the RAAF Historian, working from the Air Power Studies Centre in Canberra. A former pilot in the RAAF, he is a graduate of the RAAF Staff College, the University of New England, the Australian National University and the University of New South Wales. He is the author of a number of works on security and military history, most recently Going Solo: The Royal Australian Air Force 1946-1971, which will be published in 1996.